If you already visited it and liked it; or if this is the first time you hear about us:

Have you ever thought about your own prejudices and stereotypes about other people? Or the impression that other people might have about you? You have a lot of stereotypes for example about Roma people or homosexuals or about the disabled people, or you don't know anything about people who were victims of violence or live with the serious illness? Have you ever met an anarchist or a feminist? But you have never had the chance to speak to one of them to find out what his or her life is like?

If you are ready to face your own prejudices and stereotypical judgements and meet "your stereotype" personally, you should become a reader of the Living Library where books can speak!
